

STOP THAT'S NOT COOL

The students have been learning how to act if someone does something they do not like.

At home if you have heard your child say, "STOP, that's not cool!" Then they are learning!

The students have role played and discussed times they need to use their voice to say, "STOP, that's not cool!"

They have also learned there are times they can just walk away or even ignore the other person's antics or behavior.

As student's have been reminded to use their voice in a positive way toward another person, they have also learned that there are specific times when they need to tell the teacher or the closest adult that someone one has been mean to them by using force such as pushing, pulling, or tripping.

School is an amazing safe place to learn and have fun!

M. Johns

(then 8:07)